2. Development of Physical Education in India – Post Independence

After Independence in 1947, the government gave more importance to physical education and sports.

- Sports facilities and training opportunities were developed.
- Physical education became an important part of school education.
- Various organisations and programmes were started to promote sports.
- More opportunities were provided to athletes and students.

Easy line: After independence, India focused on improving sports, physical education, training and facilities.

3. Changing Trends in Sports

Technology has changed the way sports are played, managed and watched.

3.1 Playing Surfaces

- Modern sports use artificial/synthetic surfaces instead of only natural grass.
- Benefits: More durable, do not wear out easily and give consistent performance.
- Examples: Synthetic athletics track and astroturf in hockey.

Playing Surfaces: Artificial/Synthetic → Durable + Consistent performance

3.2 Wearable Gear & Equipment

Smart Wearables: Devices that track an athlete's performance, health and technique.

- InfoMotion Basketball: Measures ball-handling skills such as speed and force.
- Babolat Play Pure Drive: Tennis racket that tracks shot power and consistency.
- Impact: Helps coaches analyse data, improve performance and provide better safety.

3.3 Technological Advancements

- Decision Making / Fair Play: Hawkeye, Hotspot, Snickometer and DRS help officials make accurate decisions.
- Fan Engagement: Drone cameras, HD video screens and social media connect fans closer to the game.
- Performance Boosting – KERS: Kinetic Energy Recovery System captures energy produced during braking and converts it into useful energy to help boost speed.
